August 1, 2002 – Agony Productions is proud to present the world premiere of Christopher Heath's innovative new play, Four Quarters. Meet Teri and Terry and Jo and Joe, two adults who discover their inner halves while searching for their other halves. With each person in the relationship being played by two actors, a new and interesting dynamic to the bonds between the characters is brought to the stage in every scene. Two adults. Four Quarters. Working and pushing and struggling to connect, trying to be one whole.

Agony Productions was founded in 2000 in New York City, with the mission to foster a supportive environment for writers, theater producers, and filmmakers to learn and improve their craft through workshops, seminars, and interactive productions of original works by its members. Our goal as a production company is to maintain a support system for writers of theater and film and help them see their works reach the stage and screen. Our mission is to produce great writers, producers, and filmmakers through a competitive yet nurturing environment.
